THE BATTLE OF BELMONT

Gallantry of our Troops [illegible] Capture of [illegible] — [illegible] — Retreat [illegible] to Columbus — [illegible] Private [illegible] — [illegible] Officers Killed [illegible]

CAMP MCCLERNAND,
CAIRO, Nov. 8, 1861.

Ere this reaches you, you will have heard of the engagement of our forces with those of General Pillow, at Camp Belmont, opposite Columbus. On Tuesday evening, orders were received from headquarters by the officers commanding the various regiments, to be ready at four o'clock with two days' rations. The Thirtieth Regiment, Colonel Fouke, and Thirty-first, Colonel Logan, embarked on the steamer Aleck Scott, Captain Riley; the Twenty-second Regiment, Colonel Dougherty, the Twenty-seventh, Colonel Buford, and the Seventh Iowa, Colonel Lauman, upon the Memphis and Montgomery; Taylor's Battery of Artillery and a battalion of Noble's Cavalry, also the Centralia Cavalry, Captain Burrill. At five o'clock, all was in readiness and the steamers, preceded by the gunboats Tyler and Lexington, passed down about five miles below Norfolk, and anchored for the night. General Grant and staff were upon the Memphis, and General McClernand and staff upon the Aleck Scott. At daybreak, Gen. Grant ordered us to leave about 7 o'clock, A. M.

We reached Lucas' Bend and disembarked, and Gen. G. ordered the gunboats to proceed as far as practicable, and shell their batteries, and in about an hour the firing commenced from the gunboats, and was returned by the enemy from a battery on the Iron Bluffs. No damage was done to the gunboats, although the balls passed over them. I was standing on the deck of the Scott with Capt. Riley watching their battery with a glass, when they threw a shell from an 84-pound gun, which passed directly over our heads, and landed three quarters of a mile above the Scott, but did not explode. Mr. Reeder, the clerk, sent some men for it, and they found it buried in the earth over ten feet.

At this time the various regiments were forming, scouts having been sent out that the enemy were formed in line of battle two miles from their encampment. Our troops then took up the line of march, ready and eager for a fight. At nine o'clock, the line of battle was formed. The Seventh Iowa, Twenty-second and Twenty-seventh Illinois on the right, Col. Fouke in the centre, and the Thirty-first, Col. Logan, on the left, and two guns from Taylor's battery, the other four being in a cornfield in the rear. At nine o'clock the fight began. Col. Buford, of the Twenty-seventh, opening. Our boys gave three cheers and fired, and it was returned by infantry, and the artillery firing shell. The first shell exploded in the ranks of the Seventh Iowa, wounding three, and killing John Wells, a private. Col. Fouke received an order to charge, and he did it, and was ably sustained by Col. Logan. After a few more rounds, they were driven into their encampment, and Cols. Fouke and Logan were in their position on a rising hill.

At this time Col. Dougherty came up with the Twenty-second. Another charge was made, and our troops were in possession of their encampment, passing over a large number of dead bodies. This was about 2 o'clock, when an order came to burn their encampment, which was done with a good will. It was a splendid encampment, and Lieut. Col. Dennis, of the thirtieth, fired one which belonged to an artillery officer, which could not have cost less than $500. And now comes the saddest part. At this time Generals McClernand and Grant, Col. Fouke and Captains McCook and Dresser, had their horses shot from under them. Capt. Challenor of the 22d regt. and seven of his men were instantly killed.

At 2 o'clock Col. Fouke detailed company [illegible] as a scouting party. They returned and reported that a force of nearly five thousand had landed from Columbus to reinforce Pillow, and their object was to cut off our retreat to the boats. Col. Logan and Fouke fought their way ought, the balance coming after them. Just as the boats were about to leave the enemy were seen approaching the levee. The Twenty-second [illegible] the first shot from them, which they returned. The gunboats then shelled them, making a [illegible] in them. The Thirtieth and Thirty-first then fired from the Aleck Scott. None of our troops were killed, but some of them were badly wounded.

Capt. Detrich, of Company [illegible] Twenty-second regiment, was in command of three companies [illegible] in the Twenty-second and two from the Iowa [illegible] in a ravine opposite the Iron Bluff, where [illegible] battery was planted. They fired at him for a long time, but [illegible] balls and shells passed over him and not a man of his command was injured until they fired upon the Memphis, when five of his company were shot. When they came to the levee they had 2,500 infantry and 500 cavalry—all fresh troops. We took two hundred of their men prisoners and two pieces of artillery, belonging to the Washington Artillery of New Orleans, named the Lee and Jeff Davis. All [illegible] caissons.

The Memphis has gone down with Cols. [illegible] [illegible] Fouke and Logan with a flag of truce and the prisoners, to exchange and bury the dead.

P. S.—The Memphis returned at midnight. The expedition that went down upon her with the flag of truce report the whole number of [illegible] killed and [illegible] by them upon the [illegible] at eighty-five. This includes all. The rebels acknowledge their loss at three hundred and fifty killed. Dougherty of the Twenty-second is a prisoner with the loss of a leg, which has been amputated below the knee.

The Memphis brought thirteen of our wounded—three of them will probably die during the night. All that were left on the field of the battle were well cared for, and experienced the kindest treatment from the rebel surgeons. All the troops have been withdrawn to Columbus. Nothing was to be seen on the Belmont side yesterday, but the party burying the dead and a company of cavalry, searching the woods for the dead and wounded.

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 17, 1861.

The Popular Sentiment in favor of the War.

The Advertiser of the 9th inst., contains a very extraordinary statement that "the majority of the popular voices of the United States are opposed to this war." The first sensation with most persons on reading this sentence, is to exclaim, What audacity, what brazen effrontery, to make such a statement! That the reverse is true is known, admitted and acknowledged by all the world. Every month, every week, nay every day, which rolls round since the war began, has only served more and more to evince the depth, strength, and unanimity of the popular sentiment which sustains this war. This sentiment is compounded of two elements, one of love for our Government, its flag, and its institutions, and the other of abhorrence for the rebellion. The love and admiration of the people for our glorious Constitution are intensified as they have seen it thus tested, and its capacity to withstand this terrible ordeal thus cleverly demonstrated. The danger which threatens the parent excites the natural affection of the children. The perils of the country have but increased that filial attachment, and such will be the effect the longer the war continues. On the contrary, the longer secession is contemplated the more it is abhorred. Its crimes and enormities are precisely of a character to be appreciated and detested the longer they are held up to our view, and the more the whole nation suffers from its pregnant and volcanic evils. Time and reflection have only deepened in the hearts of the people their dread of the calamities present and prospective which it is sure to inflict, and their resolution to submit to any sacrifice in order to suppress it. This noble fortitude of all true patriots will only rise with the necessities of the Government, which can safely rely (thank Heaven) on the staunch and stern devotion of its citizens.

The leading men of all parties in the loyal States have rallied round the Government, but the feelings of the masses are, if possible, far ahead of their leaders. The feebleness of the opposition (if there is any) is evinced by the fact that it has no leaders, no certain creed, and no recognized exponents. Its great exponent, J. C. Breckinridge, has at last got his right position in going over body and soul to the rebels. Daniel S. Dickenson, in his admirable speech of the 24th October, has described in his vivid style the shifting and fickle elements of the peace party, and has properly characterized their weak and tame propositions of obtaining peace at any price.

As a significant index of the popular voice, look to the result of the repeated elections in Kentucky. The last election had for its main issue the approval of the course of the Kentucky members of Congress in sustaining the war, and in voting for Mr. Crittenden's patriotic resolutions. The calm, deliberate decision of Kentucky will be of great moral weight in the cool judgment of foreign nations and of posterity. At the date of those elections, not a federal soldier was stationed within the boundaries of the State of Kentucky.

Thus it is not alone in the free States that this enthusiasm in favor of the war exists. If such vehement and overwhelming aversion to the rebellion is found in Kentucky, showing itself not only in votes but in deeds, we should expect to find still stronger exhibitions of the sentiment of the masses in the free States.

In point of fact such approximation to unanimity has rarely ever been witnessed in the history of man. Such is the infirmity of human nature, that it is impossible to obtain perfect and absolute unanimity in any measure. Neither England nor France ever had such overwhelming preponderant sentiment in favor of any war as we witness now in these States. In the war of the Revolution there were more tories than are men now in the loyal States who sympathize with the rebels. Did the records of any deliberative assembly ever show greater unanimity than when, on the vote in the House in favor of Mr. Crittenden's resolution sustaining the war, there were one hundred and twenty-one votes for it, and only two against it—one Mr. Burnett, of Kentucky, the other, Mr. Reid, of Missouri? Could there be a better test? Read the weighty words of that resolution: "That the present deplorable civil war has been forced upon the country by the disunionists of the Southern States now in arms against the Constitutional Government," &c., &c., &c.

We have referred above to the effect of time on this war. Let not the timid sympathizers with rebellion imagine that the people will grow any more in favor of tamely yielding to the demands of the rebels. The conviction is only growing stronger and stronger that such weakness would only entail a harvest of calamities present and prospective to us and our posterity; for perpetual civil war would inevitably ensue. Thus it is the deliberate judgment of people and Government that the country cannot and must not be divided; and they are for "The Union as our fathers made it—one and inseparable."

The Advertiser, in placing this motto at its head, gives an involuntary and reluctant tribute to the justice and necessity of the war—and the indivisible character of our Union. It thus betrays a consciousness that the popular gales blow in that direction even in this region: for a motto like a weather-cock shows (especially among politicians) which way the wind blows. The editor is right in preparing for a hurricane. For so long as he runs up such mottoes it is of little consequence with what preposterous sophistries and misrepresentations he may lard his editorials, for they will fall like harmless missives or blank cartridges discharged from pop-gun broadsides. Hypocrisy has been defined to be "the homage which vice pays to virtue." Even a pirate cruiser will run up the Stars and Stripes when it seeks impunity from its insidious forays. Many may read the motto which streams at the top-mast who will not know the contents of the vessel. But if they are enticed into an examination, they will soon see that the craft is far from being patriotic. Nay, if they look narrowly into its history they will see that it has oftentimes amply fulfilled the character described in our blessed Constitution, as "adhering to the enemies of the Union, giving them aid and comfort."

The Secessionists in Arizonia.—A letter from San Diego to the Alta, says:—

"Perfectly reliable information arrived here from Fort Yuma, last night, that the Confederate forces in Western Texas are rapidly collecting at Messilla and its environs. They have also thrown out an advance guard of three hundred men as far as Tucson. No reliable information as to the objects of these movements has been received; but it is supposed by persons who have recently come from there that it is for the purpose of opposing forces from this State, which was reported widely, not long since, would make a descent on that port of the country, under General Sumner. This force although quite large and well appointed, is still under the command of Col. Baylor."

We hope that a movement against Arizonia will be the last thing done in this rebellion. We would be most happy to learn that all the secessionists of the country, who feel a tickling about their necks, were in Arizona.

Circular from Gen. Wright.—The following circular is published as emanating from General Geo. Wright, commanding the Pacific Department. It is addressed to Quartermasters and Commissaries:

Headqu'trs Department of Pacific,
San Francisco, Nov. 22, 1861.

In making purchases for the public service, the General commanding the Department desires you to purchase, preferably, from those citizens who have subscribed to the National Loan. There may be occasions when it is necessary to deviate from this rule; but before doing so, the General directs that you will first ascertain whether the desired articles can be procured from those who have contributed to the support of the General Government, (in the manner above indicated,) at reasonable rates; and if so, the purchase will invariably be made of them.

By order of Brigadier General Wright,
R. C. Drum,
Assistant Adjutant General.

Battle of Belmont.—This was alluded to in a brief paragraph in our dispatches. It was a severe battle. The flower of Egypt (Southern Illinois troops) was sent over to seize the rebel camp. The enemy received the news of the expedition before our troops arrived, and with a superior force was ready to receive them. Our troops, however, took the camp and burnt it, killing a large number of the enemy and retreated in safety to their boats. A report of the battle will be found on the first page of this paper.

A Georgian on Secession.—A letter just received from a party who went out in the Europa on her last voyage to Europe, gives the following "inside view" of what is going on in Georgia. We quote from the Hartford Courant:

The most interesting character on board is a Georgian, fat and jolly, who is seceding from Secessia in disgust. He says the present difficulties will be settled satisfactorily—says a vote of the real slaveholders would put a quietus upon Secessionism—that it is the non-slaveholders only that "must have room for our slaves." He says the South is governed by the mob, not by the Confederate Government, and never will be—says the country has more to fear from the abuse of suffrage than from the South—puts the whole difficulty upon the shoulders of Southern politicians, not upon the North. His version makes our English passengers stare—shuts them up.

Baker and Breckinridge.—The Philadelphia Press relates this incident of Colonel Baker's career:

Colonel Baker's last effort on the floor of the Senate merits particular attention. It was in the early part of August last. Breckinridge was delivering a set disunion harangue, as ingenious and able as any heard on behalf of secession. Baker, whose camp was a mile or two from the Capitol, entered the Senate Chamber hastily from the duties of a drill while Breckinridge was speaking. He was presently called into the lobby by a message from Holt of Kentucky, who begged him to reply to Breckinridge, as no one else would probably be ready to do so. He did so, off hand, when Breckinridge sat down, and made one of the most thrilling speeches which had been heard for years in the Chamber. It squelched Breckinridge. Who would not rather now be Baker dead than Breckinridge alive?

Tennessee Versus Tennessee.—A correspondent at Camp Wild Cat, Ky., just after the battle at that place, gives the following sad, but interesting account of the Tennesseeans in and out of the Wild Cat battle: Two regiments of East Tennessee refugees left Camp Dick Robinson, forty-four miles distant, the morning before the battle, and had reached a place for encampment two miles and a half from the field, when the night attack was heard. Though much debilitated by sickness, and worn down by the length of their march, they started at the firing and came up at a double quick, ready and eager for action. But all was now quiet, and the poor fellows were sadly disappointed. Going over the battle-field next day, they found among the rebel dead many acquaintances, neighbors, cousins, brothers, and in one instance a father. Had they arrived a few hours earlier, they would have met them on the field of carnage. Such are the fruits of this miserable rebellion.

Sound Union Men.—The New York Tribune has the following:

Dr. Clarkson T. Collins, a wealthy and celebrated physician of Great Barrington, Mass., declares his readiness and desire, in defense of the Federal Government, to be one of 1,000 men, or one of 300 to arm and equip themselves—each taking two horses and a servant—to enter the field, to give their lives, if need be, or to continue in service till the close of the war, be it for one year or ten, and all at their own expense, not to cost the Government a cent.

Parker H. French, a missionary of the Knights of the Golden Circle, was arrested in Connecticut some weeks since, and sent to Fort Warren.

The Advertiser wants a union of Democrats. Does he expect Sykes and Tom Jordan to come back?

It now seems to be certain that the order for the removal of Fremont emanated from Mr. Lincoln.

The members of the Washington Territorial Legislature at Vancouver have resolved to organize the two houses of the Legislature there, and pass laws for the government of the territory.

One hundred pack animals with provisions had left Walla Walla for Salmon river, within a week.—Walla Walla Statesman.

CITY.

LATER FROM THE COLUMBIA RIVER. — By the steamer Julia, which arrived last night from the Columbia river, Tracy & Co.'s Express brought $60,000 in gold dust. We are also informed that over fifty thousand dollars were in private hands. The steamer had gone up as far as Lewiston, and most of the gold had been received from the Salmon river mines per express, which had just got in. The most encouraging accounts are still received from the above mines. New diggings had been struck, where a Mr. Bridges, a former resident of Oregon City, had made as much as two hundred ounces a day!

The Upper Columbia was falling.

The steamer Rival brought down 800 boxes of apples from Oregon City yesterday.

E. G. Randall has a rare supply of presents for the holidays! Go and look at them.

John Wilson has a fine stock of teas, mantillas and ready-made clothing.

The steamer Cortes will leave for San Francisco this evening.

THE GOLD MINES! THE GOLD MINES. — We have news by the last steamer which impels us to state that the accounts hitherto received from the mines are to be surpassed in a manner which scarcely can be estimated. Men in locations on Salmon river can dig down through the snow and take dirt which yields gold in amount and as fast as they can desire! Pack trains and miners are now going to the mines all the while, and keep the trail open through the deep snow: and the prospect is, if provisions can be had on the Columbia river, supplies in sufficiency will be taken to the mines. There is the wildest excitements in all the towns and settlements on the river, and every man who can seems to be pushing for the mines. This country is on the eve of the wildest mining excitement ever known.

"They have their exits and their entrances." The Vancouver Chronicle has stepped out, and the Vancouver Telegraph has appeared in its place. The latter is published by Urban B. Hicks, is an independent paper, and a handsome sheet.

AN ORDINANCE to license the selling of spirituous and malt liquors in the Willamette Theatre.

The People of the City of Portland do Ordain as follows:

SEC. 1. It shall be lawful for the owner, lessee, or lessees of the Willamette Theatre to sell spirituous or malt liquors in less quantities than one quart in said Willamette Theatre, upon paying to the City Collector the sum of twenty dollars per month, to be paid in advance.

SEC. 2. The City Collector shall, upon the receipt of twenty dollars from said owner, lessee, or lessees, issue a license for a period of one month from the date of said payment to said owner, lessee, or lessees, to sell spirituous or malt liquors, as provided in the first section of this Ordinance.

SEC. 3. This Ordinance shall take effect from and after its approval by the Mayor.

Passed the Common Council, December 6th, 1861.

WM. MASTERS, Acting President.

H. Bors, Clerk.

Approved, December 12th, 1861.

Swett's Grape Bitters, or Restorative Wine, manufactured under the supervision of Mrs. A. M. SWETT, the celebrated Clairvoyant Physician, and prepared from roots and herbs of great medicinal virtue, combined with the pure juice of the California Grape—a certain remedy for Liver Complaint, Debility, Biliousness, Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Impaired Appetite, Impure Breath, &c., and all diseases requiring a powerful Liver Invigorator and Tonic. Warranted the best remedy ever invented for diseases peculiar to females, such as Leucorrea, or Whites, Weaknesses, &c. Sold by all Druggists, and by DANIEL SWETT, Proprietor, 535 California street, San Francisco. aug2d6m

Coughs.—The sudden changes of our climate are sources of PULMONARY, BRONCHIAL, and ASTHMATIC AFFECTIONS. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease, recourse should at once be had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Lozenges, let the Cold, Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off. PUBLIC SPEAKERS and SINGERS will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice. See advertisement.

The Medical and Surgical Institute of DR. L. J. CZAPKAY is already secured in a position which places it, as well as its proprietor, far above the assaults of envy and professional malice. In the schools of France, the highest prizes are often awarded to practitioners in this department of medical science, and they occupy, with others, an equally lofty position in the profession. Ricord is an illustrious example, a shining light among the philosophical stars of his age in Europe, and Dr. Czapkay has fully equalled him in this country; as a proof of which, the Philadelphia College of Medicine complimented him with a Diploma and the honorary ad eundem degree. Selecting this as his field of operation, although qualified as a graduate of the University of Pesth, and late Chief Surgeon of the Hungarian Revolutionary army, for more extended labors, Dr. L. J. Czapkay has bent his earnest attention to the cure of chronic and private diseases, in which he has become so great an expert, that he is now regarded as the LEADER in this branch of his profession throughout the United States, and his portrait and biography are published as matter of interest to their readers in the most extensive journals. The Doctor's offices are at his Medical and Surgical Institute, on Sacramento street, corner of Leidesdorff, nearly opposite the buildings of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, San Francisco. We ask particular attention of our readers to the sworn certificates of remarkable cures, in another column of this paper. Persons not wishing to lose time in corresponding, please enclose $10 in their letters, and they will get immediate attention to their cases. Address, L. J. CZAPKAY, M. D., San Francisco, Cal. june26dawly

Remarkable Instance of Medical Relief.

Below we publish the certificates of three of the [illegible] from the pangs of disease who having recovered their former health and impelled by gratitude, make known the causes and remedial agent, and their statements are authenticated by a Notary Public. The [illegible] imperiously command their publicity, and we commend them to the attention of all afflicted.

Certificate.—The undersigned, desirous of [illegible] those who may be unfortunate enough to be similarly afflicted where a permanent relief of their [illegible] may be obtained, feels it his duty to thus publicly express his sincere gratitude to Dr L J Czapkay for the [illegible] recovery of his health. Borne down by the [illegible] symptoms incident to the vicious practices of [illegible] the passion in youth, depressed in body and mind, unable to perform even the most trifling duty imposed upon the ordinary avocations of life I sought the advice of many physicians, who at first regarded my disease as of [illegible] importance—but alas after a few weeks, and in several instances, months of their treatment, I found, to my [illegible] able horror that instead of relief, my symptoms became more alarming in their torture, and being told by one that my disease being principally confined to the [illegible] would be of little consequence. I despaired of ever [illegible] my health, strength and energy, and as a last resort, and with but a faint hope, called upon Dr. Czapkay, who after examining my case prescribed some medicine which almost instantly relieved me of the dull pain and [illegible] in my head. Encouraged by the result, I resolved [illegible] immediately under his care, and by a strict obedience to his directions and advice, my head became clear and my [illegible] [illegible] the constant pain in my back and [illegible] [illegible] the nervous reaction of my whole body in the slightest alarm or excitement, the [illegible] and evil forebodings, the self-distrust and want of confidence in others, the incapability to study, and want of resolution, the frightful exciting, and at times pleasurable dreams at night, followed by involuntary discharges, have all disappeared, and in fact in two months after having consulted the doctor, I felt as if inspired by a new life—that life which but a short time ago I contemplated to end by my own hand. With the view to guard the unfortunate against the snares of incompetent quacks, I deem it my duty to [illegible] this testimony to the merit and skill of Dr. Czapkay [illegible] commend him to all who may stand in need of medical advice, being assured by my own experience that a [illegible] [illegible] and permanent cure will be effected.

MARYSVILLE, June [illegible], 185[illegible]

DR L J CZAPKAY, San Francisco—Sir:—I have used the [illegible] of your medicine and do not think I shall need any [illegible] as I feel very well except that I have not fully [illegible] my strength yet, but soon will with the appetite I have. It is [illegible] weeks you may recollect, since I called [illegible] with [illegible] constitution, as I thought, ruined [illegible] and never thought you would be able to cure me [illegible] but thought you might be able to do something [illegible] the pain in my back and head, and [illegible] [illegible] so that I would not get excited and tremble at every thing. Now that you know what I expected, you may judge of my satisfaction at the complete recovery from those [illegible] and the [illegible] of those sores and blotches [illegible] [illegible] and the ulcers from my throat, and the [illegible] [illegible] which you said were principally the [illegible] I can hardly tell you which is the [illegible] my surprise, for except not having fully [illegible] [illegible] as well as any man can feel. [illegible] twenty dollars over your charge, and [illegible] If you think any body will be [illegible] put this letter in the newspaper. [illegible]

THOMAS [illegible]

Thankfulness is the incentive to gratitude.

CERTIFICATE.—[illegible] an honest desire of my heart, I wish to lay before the public a case which [illegible] [illegible] of scientific skill, but that of [illegible] About two years ago, I suddenly, and [illegible] was seized with a fit of epilepsy [illegible] inability to meet the [illegible] medical treatment, and the disease [illegible] attempting it, soon became [illegible] so as to defy the skill of my [illegible] while in pursuit of my calling [illegible] without the slightest [illegible] the agonies, I yet claimed the [illegible] learned to look upon these [illegible] shelter me from danger as [illegible] the existence of my [illegible] previous to my affliction [illegible] was induced to [illegible] and by recommendation, called [illegible] Dr [illegible] him of my circumstances, [illegible] him for his services, regardless [illegible] undertook my case, and [illegible] more restored to perfect [illegible] for the boon which I enjoy it [illegible] indebtedness, I consider it [illegible] to make the case public [illegible] advice may find a [illegible] placed.
